SENATE STRIKES AT CARGILE

Here and There

Editorial By ALEX. H. WASHBURN

AS I write this the Arkansas legislature is nearing the end of the fifth week of its eight-week session. It has completed but one major piece of business—the legalization of horse-racing. Liquor appears likely to be legalized. Liquor and racing have been dominant issues in the first five weeks of the session for the reason that Governor Futrell has put the full force of his administration behind them. But I look in vain for a satisfactory school-revenue bill—and I am taking this occasion to remind Governor Futrell that he is unequivocally pledged to produce such a school-revenue bill and get it passed before the 50th General Assembly shall adjourn.

The senate today passed a bill to satisfy some political quarrel over the membership of the State Highway Commission.

The house today debated a bill to pay $500,000 more on some land in connection with the State Penal System. Last week-end the legislature sent a "Red Investigating" committee over to Commonwealth Labor college at Mena.

The legislature has money and leisure for everything on earth, apparently, but to provide adequately

Last P.-T. A Study Group to Meet at City Hall Friday

Miss Ethridge to Present School Program at 9:30 o'clock

INVITE ALL PARENTS

Seven Preceding Group Study Programs Are Summarized

The seventh and closing study group of parents and teachers will meet Friday afternoon in the city hall auditorium at 2:30.

At this time an interesting program will be presented under the direction of Miss Mabel Ethridge, platoon supervisor, of work now being done in the Hope schools. Every parent is invited to witness these units of study and become acquainted with the work the teachers are endeavoring to do with the new program.

The Program

The program Friday afternoon will be given over to demonstrations of the Unit Plan or Purposeful Problem Solving Activities which are based on prominent central themes common to school experiences of the children showing the proposed organization of subject matter and activity work. Each unit will contain suggestions for building desirable habits in the daily life of the child.

The second grade of Paisley school under the direction of Mrs. George Green will use the Eskimo.

Mrs. Henry Haynes with the Sixth grade of Brookwood will work around the Thanksgiving theme.

Mrs. David Davis, with the Fourth grade of Oglesby will present a Health program illustrating indirect methods in health training. There will be a display of work done by the children at the entrance. The work selected for the program was not prepared especially for this program but is a part of the regular classroom work.

Home From Conference

Our school is particularly fortunate in having such a splendid staff on this work. Miss Henry, Mrs. George Green, Mrs. Henry Haynes and Miss Mabel Ethridge attended a conference at Peabody college, Nashville, Tenn., last summer and all the teachers in the grades have given much time and thought to working out these units.

Mrs. Henry Haynes, principal of Brookwood is a member of the state

Kennamer Murder Case Given Jury

State Asks Life Term for Slayer of Young Gorrell

Case Is Given to Oklahoma Jury Shortly Before Noon Thursday

"HE WALKED OUT"

Prosecutor Asserts Phil Slew Gorrell Because He "Quit on Him"

PAWNEE, Okla.—(AP)—The case of Phil Kennamer, charged with the murder of John F. Gorrell, was given to the jury shortly before noon Thursday.

State Closes Argument

PAWNEE, Okla.—(AP)—In a sensational closing argument, a special prosecutor in the Phil Kennamer murder trial charged Wednesday night the 19-year-old defendant killed John Gorrell "because Phil was afraid he would spill the beans" about Kennamer's plans for crime.

"I say that Kennamer sought out criminals and wanted to be their leader," said Prentiss Rowe, the prosecutor, in a surprising turn of the state's attack on the dual defense plea of self-defense and temporary insanity.

"Gorrell was walking out on Phil's scheme."

The case is expected to reach the jury Thursday, with the state indicating it would ask life imprisonment for the son of Federal Judge Franklin E. Kennamer.

Five Attorneys Argue

Five attorneys presented arguments Wednesday. Two remained to be heard.

Kennamer was portrayed by the state as a "male-headed," cold blooded killer by the defense as a gallant defender of womanhood.

Dowe's charge that Kennamer sought to be a criminal leader was a thrust at his story that he shot the 23-year-old Gorrell in self-defense last Thanksgiving night after informing him he would not go through with an extortion plot against winsome Virginia Wilcox.

Kennamer Sat Stolidly, Polka-Faced

and silent. He held the prosecution's argument as a special prosecutor, pointed out that the state does not necessarily want to see young Kennamer sent to the chair.

"But we join with the defense's own mental specialists," said King, "in demanding that he be sent away from society, to be confined and prevented from continuing his career of crime."

Not Asking Death

"You may order Phil Kennamer's death in the electric chair," said Tom Wallace, assistant Tulsa county attorney. Later Wallace said that the state does not insist on such a verdict.

J. Berry King, former Oklahoma attorney general who delivered a stunning argument as a special prosecutor, pointed out that the state does not necessarily want to see young Kennamer sent to the chair.

"But we join with the defense's own mental specialists," said King, "in demanding that he be sent away from society, to be confined and prevented from continuing his career of crime."

3-Time Kidnaped Girl Again Safe

Caroline Mustane, as Twice Before, Is Found Tied to Tree

FREDERICKSBURG, Va.—(AP)—Back from her third "kidnaping" adventure in as many years, Caroline Mustane, 15, was at home Thursday apparently unharmed by her experience, which ended when her father found her "tied in the woods" near her home.

Each time she has disappeared she has been found tied to a tree.

THE NEW DEAL IN WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON.—Well, anyway, Jim Farley is going to show us what currency inflation is like.

Hop aboard for a dizzy tailspin with Jim and you'll get an idea how the value of paper money goes down in proportion as you pump a lot of new money into circulation.

By way of atoning for a sad error, the postmaster general will do the trick with postage stamps. He gave away to his friends scores of sheets of nice new issues which, because they weren't perforated, represented huge values to stamp collectors, who go in for such oddities, and did they squawk!

New he promises to start the printing presses again and pump so many imperforate sheets into the philatelic market that none will be worth more than face value.

That means that a pair of imperforated 2-cent Grand Canyon stamps, recently offered for sale at $350, will jump in value to a mere four pennies.

It will be kind of like the postwar inflation in Germany and maybe a dampening object lesson to the Senators Thomases and Father Coughlins at that.

Kennamer in Spotlight He Craved

The spotlight which friends say Phillip Kennamer has craved in bizarre ambitions since his childhood played glaringly on the youth on trial in Pawnee, Okla., for the slaying of John Gorrell, Jr., as he went to the stand in his own defense. Here is a striking study of the 19-year-old son of a federal judge as he sat in court and heard members of his Tulsa social set give testimony that cast doubts on his sanity.

Dr. Martindale Is Renamed Physician

Again Appointed County Health Officer by State Health Board

Dr. G. H. Martindale of Hope, Wednesday was re-appointed Hempstead county health officer by Dr. W. B. Grayson, member of the State Board of Health. Dr. Martindale succeeds himself.

The state health official said the appointment was made upon recommendation of County Judge H. M. Stephens.

The new appointment is the fourth for Dr. Martindale. He served two terms under the administration of County Judge John L. Wilson, and this is his second under the present county judge.

For Lafayette county, Dr. F. E. Baker of Lewisville, was named; for Sevier county, Dr. J. C. Graves of Lookersburg; for Ouachita county, Dr. R. C. Kennedy of Camden; for Nevada county, Dr. A. B. Dickey of Prescott; for Little River county, Dr. W. J. Ringgold of Ashdown; for Howard county, Dr. E. S. Stokes of Center Point; for Clark county, Dr. T. T. Ross of Arkadelphia; and for Columbia county, Dr. W. P. Cooksey of Magnolia.

As of January 1, 1935, there were 2297 airports and landing fields in the United States, California leading with 204. Included in this total were 58 army airdromes and 24 navy air stations.

Bruno's Execution Stayed by Appeal

Investigator Asserts Body May Not Have Been That of Babe

TRENTON, N. J.—(AP)—The execution of Bruno Richard Hauptmann, convicted of the murder of the Lindbergh baby, was stayed indefinitely Thursday when a certified copy of a writ of error was filed with the clerk at the state prison.

Asserts Evidence Unused

NEW YORK.—(AP)—Former defense investigator George H. Foster said Thursday that counsel for Bruno Richard Hauptmann had ignored evidence that the body in the murder case could not have been that of the Lindbergh baby.

Foster declared that seven autopsy experts were ready to show that the body found near Hopewell and identified by Charles A. Lindbergh as that of his son was more than four inches taller than the Lindbergh baby; was decomposed more than would have been possible in the mild weather after the kidnaping—and had been embalmed.

Chapman Indicted in Another Holdup

Although Serving Prison Sentence, He Is Named at Lewisville

LEWISVILLE, Ark.—(AP)—Charlie Chapman, Arkansas self-styled "depression" bandit, who is serving terms in the state penitentiary for bank robbery, Wednesday was indicted by the Lafayette county grand jury for the $4,000 robbery of the Budew bank here December 8, 1932.

Prosecuting Attorney Ned Stewart said he would ask Chapman's return here to face trial on the indictment which was among 23 returned by the grand jury.

Chapman, 36-year-old former prospector Arkansas highway contractor, pleaded guilty last October in the $23,000 holdup of the Citizens National Bank and Trust Company at Camden in 1933, and received a 15-year sentence here December 8, 1932.

A second 15-year sentence was added for robbery of the Smackover State bank and a third guilty plea at Washington, Ark., brought him a sentence of seven years for the $23,000 holdup of the First National bank at Hope

Roosevelt Holds Relief First; Hoover Asks Gold Return

TUGWELL MAY QUIT

Assistant Agriculture Secretary Reported Considering Resigning

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—Wednesday's public statement by Herbert Hoover on money policies stirred the capitol Thursday—but the administration stood pat on its program, and just now is worried more by the matter of relief funds than of gold.

It was authoritatively reported that Rexford Tugwell is considering resigning as Undersecretary of Agriculture, but he possibly may take another government position.

Hoover, on Gold

TUCSON, Ariz.—(AP)—Former President Hoover, commenting on the Supreme Court's gold decision, said Wednesday the United States should return to the gold standard "and restore confidence in our currency."

Mr. Hoover declared that all threat of further devaluation should be removed and the dollar made convertible at the present 50 cents of gold, "payable in gold bullion."

"Apparently all members of the court agreed that the government acted unconstitutionally in repudiation of the covenant on its own bonds," he said. "A majority of the members concluded that the citizen has no remedy."

"That will have long moral consequences, but whatever the morals are right or wrong of the devaluation, the face of the American people must be forward."

"The need and the opportunity now is to restore confidence in the dollar. All threat, actual or potential, of further devaluation should be removed. To do this and give a needed contribution to real recovery the dollar should immediately be made convertible, at the present 50 cents of gold, making it payable in gold bullion—the modern method of special payment."

"There is no need to wait on foreign nations before we re-establish the gold standard and restore confidence in our currency. This would be bound to follow some time. They are far more afraid of our doing just this than they are of any American 'managed currency,' at which game they have us at a disadvantage."

There are "five compelling reasons" for returning to the gold standard, Mr. Hoover continued. He said they are:

"1.—It would put more men to work out of the 12,000,000 still unemployed than any other single action. Unemployment rests today largely in the capital goods or construction industries. These industries depend largely upon long term capital. People are hesitant to invest their savings and take long term risks because there is uncertainty in what value they will be repaid."

"2.—The government's program of stimulating the capital goods and giving employment through public works can never result in 25 per cent of the jobs which can be provided by recovery of normal private capital-goods activities. The otherwise inevitable budget deficits imply either increasing taxation or other devaluation or inflation. A convertible gold currency now would help avoid all these by aiding to restore employment and decrease the need for relief."

"3.—Devaluation which has already taken place has shown and will show in still higher costs of living. It affects every wage and salary earner. Surely, a 50 per cent cost of living increase, already now in prospect, should be enough without further increase beyond that level."

"4.—One of the declared purposes of devaluation was to, in effect, write down debts by increasing prices. Surely the debtors, who include holders of common stock and equities in real

UPMINSTER, Essex, Eng.—(AP)—Two beautiful American girls, Elizabeth and Jane DuBois, only children of a consul-general, plunged from an airplane to their death Thursday.

Friends said the sisters started on their last flight heart-broken over the recent crash-deaths of two men of the Royal Flying Corps.

The girls left two letters—one addressed to their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Coert DuBois, of San Francisco. DuBois is United States consul-general at Naples, Italy.

Elizabeth, 23, and Jane, 20, embraced each other in the plunge, witnesses on the ground said.

S. R. Morgan Files Bankruptcy List

Former El Dorado and Little Rock Utility Operator Owes Million

LITTLE ROCK.—Debts totaling $1,232,200 and assets of $24,600 were listed in a scheduled submitted Wednesday to support a voluntary petition in bankruptcy filed in federal court February 11 by S. R. Morgan, for many years interested in financing and operation of public utility companies in Arkansas and other states. The petition was referred last week by Federal Judge Martinus to Fred C. Mullinix of Jonesboro as referee in bankruptcy when Joe H. Schneider, the referee here, disqualified himself.

The one item listed in the assets section of the schedule is 216 shares of the capital stock of the Osage Ice & Ice Cream Company, Osage, Kan., totaling $24,600.

Morgan was indicted by a federal grand jury here in April, 1929, on charges of failing to file income tax returns for 1925 and 1926 and with willfully evading the tax. Previously he had been arrested on information charging him with evasion of income taxes in 1925 and 1926 with intent to defraud the government of $234,900.77. M. B. Morgan, brother of S. R. Morgan, and associated in many of his public utilities holdings, was also indicted.

On January 27, 1934, S. R. Morgan changed his plea from not guilty to guilty on one count of the indictment and was fined $100. On motion of United States Attorney Charles F. Cele three additional counts of the indictment were dismissed.

Until several years ago, when he moved to Chicago, Morgan's operations in Arkansas were extensive.

First trials showed a gain of one point on March and unchanged on May and July. New crops months were inactive at the start. March eased off two points after the opening of 12.13 and May lost one point at 12.53. July remained unchanged at 12.60 and later October traded at 12.52 and December 12.61, making the price level net unchanged to two points down compared with Wednesday's close near the end of the first half hour of trading.

NEW YORK.—(AP)—Cotton futures opened steady, two points advance to one point decline with lower Liverpool cables offset by trade buying. March 12.41; May 12.53; July 12.60; October 12.53; December 12.58; January 12.61.

Revises Highway Board, to Remove Arkadelphia Man

Bill Would Have C. H. Murphy, El Dorado Commissioner, Serve for Him

URGE FERA CHANGE

House Asks Prompt Transfer of Duties to State Welfare Board

LITTLE ROCK.—(AP)—The senate passed a bill Thursday creating a State Highway Commission of seven members and which would automatically remove J. S. Cargile, of Arkadelphia, as commission chairman.

The bill provides that the term of office of the member having the shortest time to run shall be ended; and that the other member from the same congressional district shall serve for his term of office.

Chairman Cargile and Charles H. Murphy, of El Dorado, are from the Seventh congressional district—and Cargile's term expires before that of Murphy.

The new bill would provide that the new commission shall consist of one member from each congressional district.

The house spent most of the morning considering the State Penitentiary Commission's bill to appropriate $30,000 to complete purchase of the Wright plantation, which is a part of Tucker Prison Farm. Action on the bill was deferred.

The house unanimously adopted a resolution addressed personally to President Roosevelt expressing the dissatisfaction and complaint "of some of the members" against the FERA in Arkansas.

The resolution asked that the president at once cause the transfer of duties from the present federal setup to the newly-created State Public Welfare Board.

Textbook Bill Passes

LITTLE ROCK.—The house passed a bill Wednesday by Gates of Cleveland to provide free textbooks for the first eight grades.

The textbook bill, similar to one defeated in the house last week except that it would not levy a tax on oil severed from Arkansas soil, was passed by a vote of 73 to 18. The bill received 70 votes last week, but the attorney general held that since it would have levied an additional tax on oil, a vote of 15, or a three-fourths majority, would be necessary. The speaker held that, under a ruling of the attorney general, the new bill would require only 51 votes for passage, but that unless it received 75 votes, it would have to be referred to the people at the next general election.

The bill would levy a tax of one-fifth of one cent on each kilowatt hour of electricity and two cents per 1,000 cubic feet of natural gas. All the revenue would be placed to a free textbook fund. Debate on the bill was limited to 10 minutes on each side. Underhill of White, Thompson of Hempstead who yielded his roll call to gates to bring up the bill; Bolton of Crawford and Gates spoke for the bill, while Bucklew of Benton county, Mason of Ouachita, Holland of Sebastian and McCollum of Monroe spoke against it.

"Why have free textbooks when we have no free schools?" asked Bucklew, Underhill favored the bill on "general principles," he said. Bolton said it was "a constructive piece of legislation." Mason opposed the bill on the ground that since only 12½ per cent of the state's population uses natural gas and only 15 per cent uses electricity, the Gates bill would tax only 15 per cent of the people, which

NEW ORLEANS.—(AP)—Cotton opened steady and virtually unchanged although Liverpool cables were lower than due. Trading at the start was light, consisting mostly of liquidation of the March position in advance of the first note day, which will be Saturday, February 23, and evening up in advance of the Washington's birthday holiday.

First trades showed a gain of one point on March and unchanged on May and July. New crops months were inactive at the start. Much Disease Spread By Infected Rats

The rat is responsible for the spreading of much disease. It is noted particularly for its danger in connection with plague. A rat eats anything that it can get, and if it is hungry enough it will eat its own young or members of its own tribe.

Rats carry not only plague, however, but also typhus through the fleas and lice which live on the rats. They carry trench fever, infectious jaundice, rat-bite fever, foot and mouth disease and perhaps certain forms of animal influenza.

When they are hungry, rats will attack human beings and large animals. In a large circus three elephants had to be killed because the rats had gnawed their feet. Rats have started many fires by chewing matches. In years of famine they make the famine worse by eating crops.

Rats breed rapidly. It has been estimated that one rat will do at least $2.50 worth of damage a year, and that rats cost England about $75,000,000 annually. Hotel managers estimate that rats cost them at least $5 a year each. And in the United States they cost about $350 a year a person, or a total of more than $600,000,000.

The battle between man and rats is unending. If they were not kept under control, the rats would soon destroy human civilization entirely. One of the most potent ways in which the rat attacks mankind is by aiding in perpetuating the infectious agents of plague and typhus fever.

Typhus fever must not be confused with typhoid. It is an infectious condition with a skin rash and a high fever, which usually tends to terminate at the end of the second week with either recovery or the death of the patient. Typhoid fever is long continued, and is caused by a germ taken into the body with infected food or water.

Typhus invariably is spread by the body louse. Plague is spread not only by rats, but also by squirrels and similar rodents. From the rat, the infected flea carries plague germs to other rodents.

Two varieties of rat are chiefly concerned in the spread of plague—the brown rat, which is the large, fierce sewer rat, and the black rat, which is the smaller domestic type living near man and near small stores of food.

The finding of dead rats is always occasion for suspicion of disease. The milder forms of typhus fever seen in large cities are slightly different from the malignant types.

Some years ago cases seen in New York by a physician named Brill were recognized as typhus fever imported from Eastern Europe. This type is called Brill's disease.

A BOOK A DAY

By BRUCE CATION

Here's a Biography of the Typhus Germ—Zinsser's Book on Disease Is Unusually Interesting

The most unusual book of the winter—and, in a great many ways, the most enjoyable to read—is Hans Zinsser's "Rats, Lice, and History."

This book is a biography of a new kind; a biography of the typhus fever germ, with a discussion of the way in which it has affected human history. But because Dr. Zinsser, a bacteriologist, has a restless and inquisitive mind, it is a great deal more than merely a study of a disease.

For Dr. Zinsser—who begins by remarking that he is writing this book for his own amusement, and that anyone who doesn't like it can lump it—takes occasion to speak his mind on practically everything that happens to interest him. Since his interests are manifold, this makes the subject matter of his book rather broad.

He digresses, for instance, to discuss modern art, to write a very sensible monograph on the parallel and the contrast between art and science, to air his views on the science-and-religion controversy, to say what he thinks of such ultramodern writers as James Joyce and Gertrude Stein; indeed, it is not until he is more than half-way through the book that he really gets down to typhus fever.

Then he handles his subject with the air of an expert. He tells how diseases are born, how they change during the course of centuries, how the complex relationship of microbes, parasites, and man is evolved, how scientific preventive and curative measures sometimes have unexpected results; and he writes, altogether, a book which, lit by an ironic and intelligent humor, is as solidly interesting as any you will come across all year.

Published by Little, Brown and Co. the book sells at $2.75.

YOUR CHILDREN

By Olive Roberts Barton

Child's Self-Prize Is Certain to Fail If Standard Set Is Too Adult for Him

Little children are naturally very proud. Watch the set of head and shoulders, the straight courageous gaze, the own-master bearing of almost any properly treated child of pre-school years.

Not all the kings of history could produce one example of more perfect assurance or pride.

We'll ignore the willful one, the arrogant and the spoiled. Although they might bear resemblance to despots, they have no natural pride in self.

"This pride of little children—what becomes of it? Why, as they age and go to school and learn to run errands and meet people on their own responsibility, do they lose that fearlessly proud posture? When and where does inferiority and distrust set in? When do they cease to be sure of themselves?

Expecting Too Much
I think it is when we begin to substitute blame for praise. When we expect the child at six to become an expert in living, overnight, and when we suddenly set standards beyond his reach.

School is not to be blamed. This is no intention of indictment of schools or teachers. Nor of parents, altogether. Nor the butcher, the baker, Grandma nor Aunt Mary. It is not anybody, but everybody, for society in general bears with the pre-school child, then suddenly clamps down on the school-child.

He has some preparation. His mind has developed reason in a degree. He can see that certain things are good for him, that he must do things he doesn't like and conform in different ways to a set life.

He accepts this better than he could have done a year or two ago and is ready for quite a little regimentation now.

This being the case, he should retain his pride, confidence and poise; but in too many cases he doesn't. He just isn't quite the same frank, honest, unworried little Harry he used to be.

The cause must lie with us and I believe it does. We expect too much of him and soon let him know when he fails us.

Watch for "Reversals"

Take ourselves for instance. We know perhaps how to swim, play tennis or skate. Suddenly we are drafted to play golf, scarcely knowing one card from another. How many days will it take to rub that look of well-being from our features? Few, if our critics are impatient. Never if they are kind. We will keep our pride in spite of mistakes.

The six-year-old is learning not one but a dozen new games. We should be patient. He cannot adjust himself to the new all at once.

Watch him now for "reversals" or little junks back to babyhood plays and comforts. If six-year-old Harry Teddy and won't go to bed without him, he is beginning to feel unhappy and frightened in his new life. It is a hard period indeed. He need not be babied or pitied or coddled. All he needs is understanding, and a few hearts that know him for what he is.

Service
A rather stout woman was making herself a nuisance in the big shop. Nothing it seemed, would suit her, and the unfortunate shop-assistant was beginning to get a little weary.

Ickes Denies He Suspected Farley

Never Probed Postoffice Department, as Huey Long Asserted

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Secretary Ickes and Postmaster General Farley presented a common front against Senator Huey P. Long Tuesday after Ickes denied his men had even "investigated" the activities of his cabinet colleague.

Long was the author of a resolution adopted by the senate—after he claimed for it for three days—which directed the Department of the Interior to furnish date on any inquiry it had ever made about Farley.

There is no such data to furnish, Ickes told reporters, but he said he would send to the Senate Postoffice Committee, in compliance with one phase of Long's resolution, a report on the award of a contract for the New York postoffice annex.

Tennessee Flays Lug
NASHVILLE, Tenn. — (AP) — Characterizing Senator Huey P. Long as a "bull dozing, demagogic politician," the house adopted Tuesday a resolution commending Postmaster General Ickes, whom Long has assailed.

The resolution set out that Farley has been "viciously assailed, unjustly criticized and falsely accused," by Senator Long.

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

By Alicia Hart

Filling Out Hollows Is Difficult

A good many women want to know how to eliminate hollows around their collarbones and an equally large number are interested in getting rid of hollow-chested condition. For this reason, I am going to give a few suggestions which, I hope, will prove useful.

First of all, make up your mind to be a little philosophical about your particular trouble. Most flat-chested girls have a great tendency to walk with shoulders slumped forward in the hope that bad posture will hide the hollows. It won't, of course. Furthermore, it emphasizes defects in the figure. If you feel that you must do something to make yourself and others less conscious of the flatness, wear frilly jabots, ruffled collars and the like. Meanwhile, carry your chest up and down. In addition, do exercises.

As far as we know, swimming is about the best exercise to develop breast muscles and make the neck round and attractive. If you possibly can, go to a swimming pool at least three times a week and diligently use the good old breast stroke. If not, do that same breast stroke right in your own room.

Stand erect with heels together. Bring your arms upward to shoulder level in front of you—palms facing each other. Then, turning the palms outward, swing arms outward to the side, holding the palms at shoulder level. Hold the position a second and begin to try to push arms backward. Keep on forcing them back until shoulders strain and arm muscles begin to tire. Relax and repeat fifty times.

When you have finished the swimming stroke, bend arms slightly, raise to shoulder level at the sides, hold hands in tense, claw-like position and then try to force shoulders back.

In other words, practice a variety of exercises that make the muscles of the chest and neck actually do some work. Swing arms up, back, over and down several times, always forcing them so far backward in an exaggerated manner.

NEXT: How to make your own necks.

For Kidney and Bladder Trouble

Stop Getting Up Nights

Here's one good way to flush harmful waste from kidneys and stop bladder irritation that often causes scanty, burning and smarting passage. Ask your druggist for a 35-cent box of Gold Medal Huarlem Oil Capsules—a splendid safe and harmless diuretic and stimulant for weak kidneys and irritated bladder. Besides "getting up" nights, some symptoms of kidney trouble are backaches, puffy eyes, leg cramps, and moist palms, but be sure to get GOLD MEDAL—it's the genuine medicine for weak kidneys—right from Haarlem in Holland.

How Calotabs Help Nature To Throw Off a Bad Cold

Millions have found in Calotabs at most valuable aid in the treatment of colds. They take one or two tablets the first night and repeat the dose at the first or fifth night if needed.

How do Calotabs help Nature throw off a cold? First, Calotabs are one of the most thorough and dependable of all intestinal eliminators, thus cleansing the intestinal tract of the germ-laden mucus and toxins.

Second, Calotabs are diuretic to the kidneys, promoting the elimination of cold poisons from the blood. Thus Calotabs serve the double purpose of a purgative and diuretic, both of which are needed in the treatment of colds.

Calotabs are quite economical, only twenty-five cents for the full package, ten cents for

The Coming of Spring

Fairer grows the earth each morning
To the eyes that watch a light;
Every dew-drop sparkles warning
Of a miracle in sight;
Of some unexpected glory;
Waiting in the old and plain;
Poet's dream nor traveler's story
Word such wonders as remain.

The Bay View Reading club held its regular bi-weekly meeting on Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. W. W. Johnson and Mrs. T. R. Billingsley as hosts in the attractive Johnson-Swiegood apartment in the Galster home on North Hervey street. The keynote of the decorations was spring, with spring's earliest and loveliest blossoms, the Roman hyacinth and the pansies gracefully arranged in vases and bowls throughout the rooms, interspersed with baskets of beautiful Japanese or "fire bush," giving a most delightful colorful effect and furnishing the program leader, whose subject for discussion was "garden." In preparing the year book, the program committee left the subject open, giving the leader the privilege of discussing her own "Hobby." Following the opening of the meeting by the president, Mrs. Steve Carlgren Jr., and the reading of the minutes of the previous meeting by the secretary, Mrs. Will Agee, Dr. Elta Champlin introduced Mrs. Sid Henry as leader for the afternoon. Mrs. Henry discussed her "hobbies" from childhood days, demonstrating that each age held its hobby, finally culminating in some action or application of that, which gave most joy and told of the benefits and truths that could be learned from garden. Mrs. Jack Sullivan one of the city's most delightful readers gave Ben King's clever poem, "The Flower's Ball." Mrs. Henry further stated that "The beginnings of man were staged in a garden. It was in a garden that the drama of the human race began to unfold, and it was from a garden that man and woman went out to conquer the world, that the Christ met his darkest hour in a garden, out of which sprang the Resurrection and Life Triumphant, which is so beautifully depicted in the stained glass windows of the church of St. Paul, O. E. S. visitors. Mrs. Fanny Garrett was introduced and gave beautiful descriptions of the Garden of Eden and Gethsemane. The program closed with Mrs. Steve Carlgren Jr., telling of the wonderful gardens of Virginia, giving interesting historical facts pertaining to the different shrubs and trees that furnish so much interest and beauty for the eye of the traveler making his annual pilgrimage to these beauty spots of America, closing her discussion with some lovely pictures of the gardens at Mt. Vernon and the cherry trees of Washington, D. C. At the close of the program, the hostesses assisted by Mrs. Ada Swiegood, Mrs. Matt Galster and Miss Van Gaster served a most tempting salad course with hot tea. The next meeting will be held on March 6, at the home of Mrs. Gus Haynes on South Pine street, with Mrs. Hugh Smith presenting her "Hobby."

Horns Concealed Cleverly in Dodge

Grilles Below Head-Lamps Cover Horns, Not Parking-Lights

"My!" said the observant lady, pointing at the chromium-trimmed grilles below the head lamps of the new Dodge—"what a cute way of having the parking lamps!"

But the day was wrong. Those grilles, so adroitly located that they just "belong" there, serve a different purpose. Behind them are the places for mounting signal horns.

As the attendant put it—"it's one of those three-birds-with-one-stone ideas. It takes the horn from under the hood where it clutters up the engine and wastes part of its loudness; it places the signal where it belongs, out in front; and it afforded the body designers an opportunity to do, at one stroke, something useful and ornamental."

"So, ladies and gentlemen, those lower affairs of the new Dodge are the horn grilles!"

Just produced two bulletins for teachers, setting forth the new curriculum. The entire course has been interesting and instructive and Hope mothers are indeed fortunate in having this opportunity offered them. These programs have been presented.

1. This Day and Age—Mrs. Graves, chairman. General comparison of today and yesterday—the continuous process of gradual change. Comparison of car of 1914 with 1934 model, Mrs. Chester Lester. Rural life 20 years ago and now, Mrs. Edwin Dossett.

Discussion on Capitalism, Social Planning—Concentration of power, things and men of today and yesterday—Mrs. Robert Wilson, Mrs. Ched Hall, Mrs. Orville Erringer, Mrs. J. R. Henry and Mrs. George Green.

Advances in law, engineering, medicine and veterinary—Mrs. O. A. Graves, Mrs. John Owens, Mrs. A. C. Kolb and Miss Nellie Porter.

Criminology—Mrs. Brannon. Social change vs. mechanical change, Mrs. Orville Erringer.

Education part in speeding social adjustments—Miss Beryl Henry. Conclusion—The group.

2. Then and Now—Mrs. Florence Hyatt, chairman.

Mrs. Hyatt gave a brief account of the growth of public schools in America.

Education Ideals of Horace Mann—Mrs. Henry Haynes.

Former Depressions and the Effect on Education—Mrs. E. P. Young.

Educational Beginnings in Hope—Mrs. Harry Lemley.

The High School I Attended—Mrs. Ched Hall.

The Growth of Hope Schools—Miss Beryl Henry.

Things That Concern People—Mrs. Hugh Jones, chairman.

Cost of Crime—Miss Mamie Bryant. Cost of a Recent Murder Trial—Mrs. George Green.

Avoiding Crime—Mrs. Chester Lester.

Divorce in Arkansas—Mrs. H. O. Kyles.

Juvenile Delinquency—Mrs. Ruffin Boyett.

Recreational Facilities of Your Community—Mrs. F. G. Ward.

Library Facilities in Your Community—Mrs. J. A. Henry.

4. Subject Matter and the New Curriculum. What Should the Schools Teach?—Miss Beryl Henry.

Miss Henry made her question one for each mother by asking each one to write on a slip of paper the answer to, "What do you desire the school to teach your child?" and "How far do you think our recreational program should go?"

These answers were discussed round-table and Miss Mabel Ethridge told what our schools were doing to meet some of these problems that tend to promote the welfare of social living.

Miss Henry particularly stressed the need of a boy's director and a boy's club for the city that the leisure hours may be more profitably spent. She also stressed the need of a health instructor.

5. Subject Matter and the New Curriculum—Mrs. Henry Haynes.

Should the development of personality be as much a concern of the school as teaching subject matter?—Mrs. Hugh Smith.

Round table discussion of the New Curriculum and the parents reaction to it—led by Miss Beryl Henry.

Mrs. Haynes ably discussed her subject and told of results obtained in her work and new units being attempted here.

6. Educational Policies—Mrs. Chester Lester, chairman.

Principles and Platform of Education—Mrs. Hugh Jones.

The Duties of the School Board—Mrs. Edward McFaddin.

Major Duties of the Superintendent—Mrs. Peyton Enloe.

The Principal—Mrs. Orville Erringer.

Certification of Teachers—Miss Beryl Henry.

7. Footing the Bill—Rev. Fred Harrison.

Rev. Harrison gave many surprising figures on the cost of education showing how very little is spent on education in comparison to expenditures on other things.

Thirteen billion dollars is spent annually for crime, $11,817,000,000 for automobiles while many complain at the $2,615,068,000 the United States spends to educate its youth. He stated that it costs $300 a year to keep a delinquent boy in Arkansas Industrial school while $30 will pay for a boy in public school.

"PLANT TO PROSPER" COMPETITION

The "Plant to Prosper" Bureau
Care of The Commercial Appeal,
Memphis, Tenn.
(Or, deliver to county agent's office.)
I want to enter the 1935 "Plant to Prosper" Competition for $1,550 in cash awards, The Commercial Appeal Trophy, and The Commercial Appeal Certificate of Honor.
My name is _____
My address is _____

(Town) _____ (County) _____
(State) _____

The size of my farm is _____ acres. Of this amount _____ acres are in cultivation.

I am participating in the government's crop adjustment program for 1935.

This is the blank which every farmer must fill in properly and mail to the "Plant to Prosper" Bureau, in care of The Commercial Appeal, in order to be eligible for awards offered to farmers who make best use of the opportunities afforded by the government's reduction program to develop "live-at-home" programs of diversified farming.

The signing of this blank involves no obligation upon the part of the individual farmer. However, it is necessary that everyone competing for the awards send a blank to the Bureau.

Every farmer in Hempstead county is invited to participate in the 1935 "Plant to Prosper" Competition for prizes totaling nearly $2,000.

Sponsored again this year by the Commercial Appeal, with the cooperation of the Memphis Chamber of Commerce agricultural committee and the agricultural extension forces of Mississippi, Arkansas and Tennessee, the second year of the "Plant to Prosper" competition is devoted to finding the answer to this question:

"What farmer (county, state and Mid-South) uses to best advantage the opportunities afforded by the government reduction program to develop a 'Live-at-Home' system of diversified agriculture on his farm?"

Prizes will be distributed as follows:

County awards (in every county where five or more farmers enter): The Commercial Appeal Certificate of Honor and an invitation to the annual "Plant to Prosper" banquet in Memphis.

State awards (By The Commercial Appeal): $200 first prize, $100 second prize, and $50 third prize in each state, Mississippi, Arkansas and Tennessee.

Grand prize: $500, offered by the Memphis Chamber of Commerce agricultural committee, and The Commercial Appeal Trophy.

Winning farmers last year included every type in the cotton belt, with $500 in cash prizes going to J. H. (Bud) Sanders, a small Tennessee tenant farmer who never owned a plot of ground in his life. This year the winner of the grand prize will have a total of $700 in cash, in addition to The Commercial Appeal Trophy, The Commercial Appeal Certificate of Honor in his home county, and an invitation to the "Plant to Prosper" banquet in Memphis.

All that is necessary to enter is to fill out a "Plant to Prosper" blank and send it to The Commercial Appeal or to Frank R. Stanley, your county agricultural agent, who is in charge in Hempstead county.

Every farmer who enters will receive a copy of The Commercial Appeal "Plant to Prosper" Booklet for 1935 containing valuable information for the farmer, as well as the brief reports which he is expected to make in the Competition.

Alex. H. Washburn, editor of Hope Star, has been asked by County Agent Stanley to serve on the "Plant to Prosper" Committee for Hempstead county and to help name other members of the committee.

Enrollment in the Competition must be made between now and May 1. Farmers will not be permitted to enter after that time. Nor will any county be permitted to compete with fewer than five farmers. Judging will take place and awards will be made in the fall.

Sole purpose of the "Plant to Prosper" Competition is the promotion of self-sustaining agricultural programs on the individual farm.

Revises Highway

he declared was not "fair and equitable." Holland was of the opinion that it was a "discriminatory" measure.

McCallum referred to the bill as a "bullyhoo measure." He said that if the proposed tax were levied for the common schools, he would vote for it.

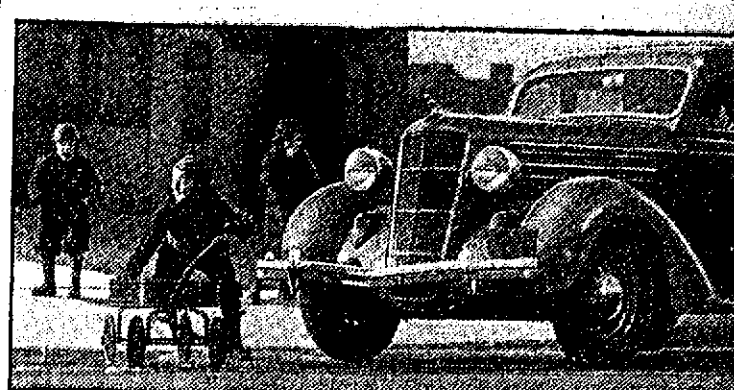

"This fund is more acutely in need than any other fund," he declared. He said that under present laws school districts are empowered to furnish textbooks to pupils unable to buy them. He added that in all other states which furnish textbooks free to pupils there have been charges of graft.

In speaking for passage of his bill, Gutes said:

"From the standpoint of glory, I am not interested in the passage of this free textbook bill, but merely from the standpoint of the underprivileged child who is hidden away on the plains, on the hillside, in the valleys and in the innermost recesses of our great state. There, hidden away from the curious gaze of the idle is talent, genius, manhood, womanhood and courage, waiting for this great state to reach out with a helping hand and furnish them with free textbooks.

This bill provides more than enough money to buy free textbooks and will give to the common school fund at least $100,000. The tax cannot be passed on to the consumer. If the corporations should attempt to do so, they would violate the law."

'LOOK! WE CAN SIT UP NOW!' SAY THE 'QUINS'

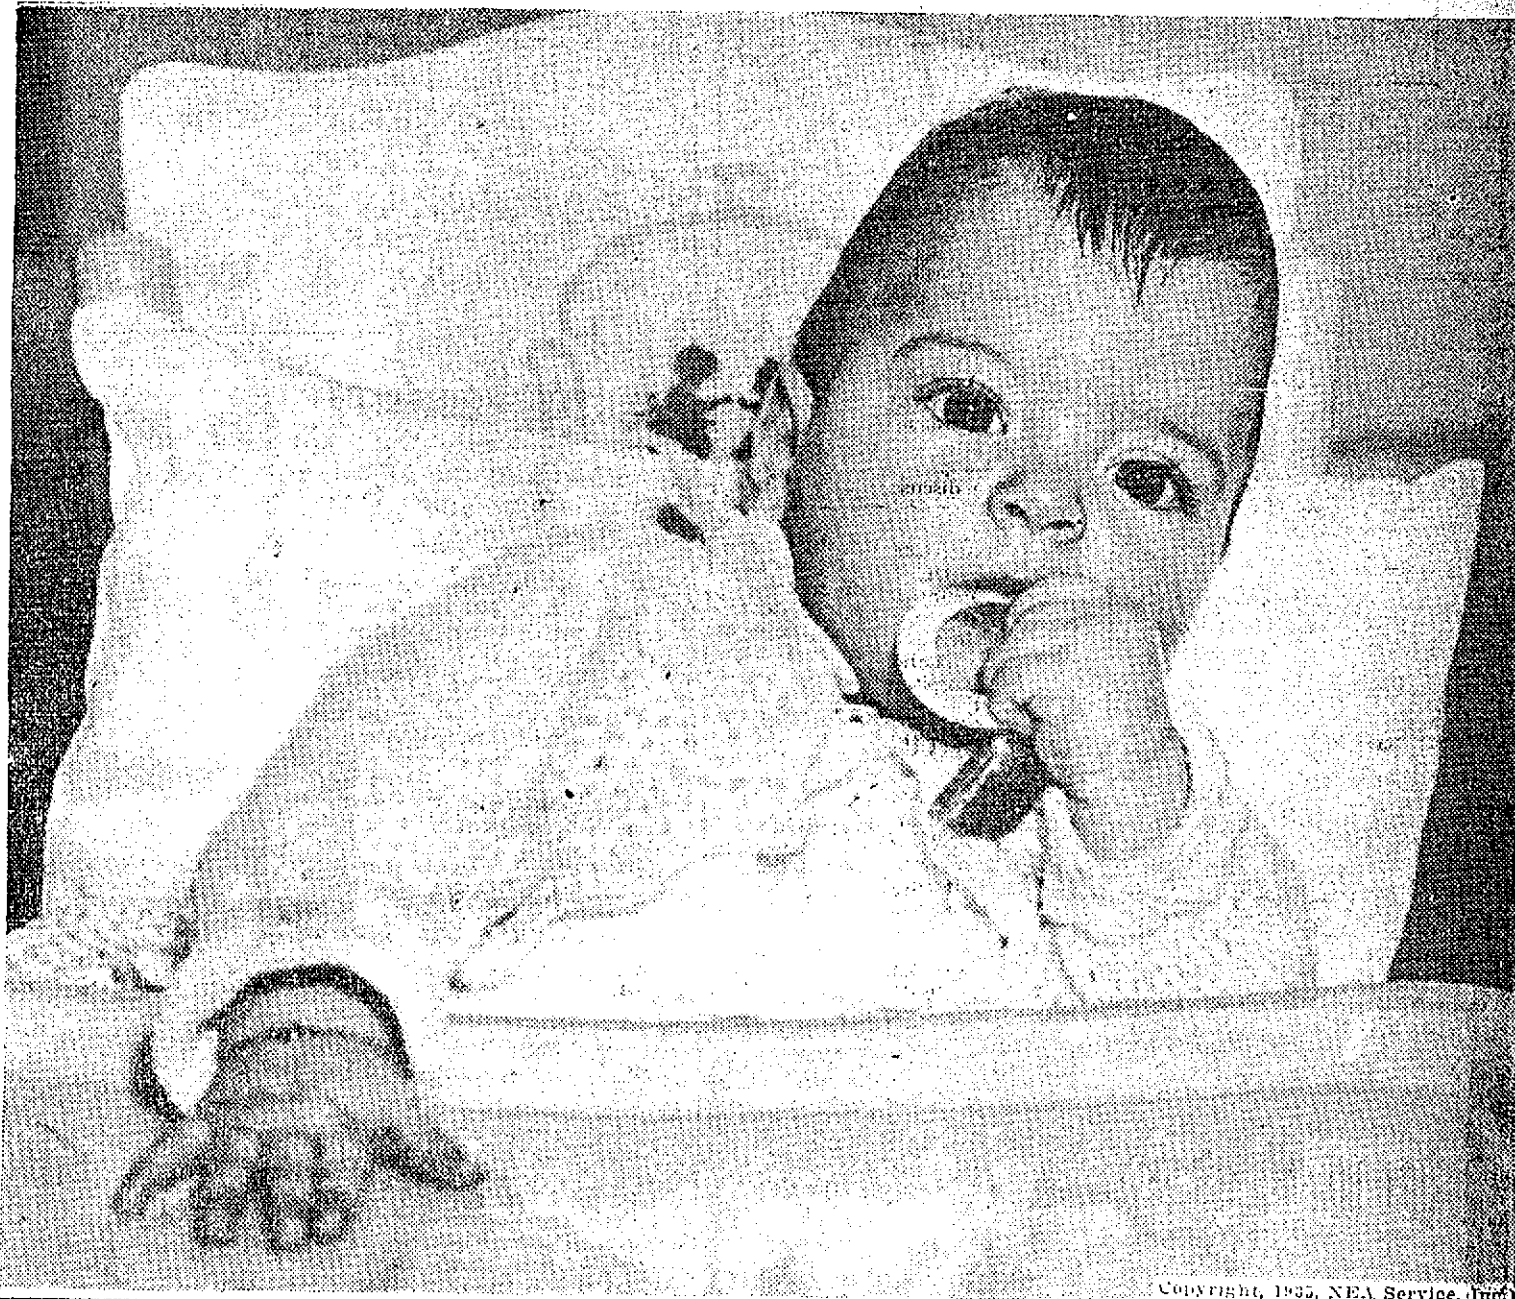

Sitting up straight and strong in their little white chairs, the Dionne quintuplets now spend part of their day in these "sitting-up exercises." Annette, extreme left, looks straight into the camera, while Emelie, next in line, is absorbed in the mystery of the colored marbles that slide on a wire on the chair shelf. Yvonne reaches eagerly forward for whatever she can get.

FIVE SURE SIGNS THAT TEETHING TIME IS NEAR!

Annette, most mischievous and aggressive of the Dionne quintuplets, seems to feel an urge to bite her rubber cat, though teeth are a thing she has not yet been bothered with. Look at that fat, chubby little hand extended before her!

"To be or not to be?" seems to be the question absorbing Yvonne as she sits in this Hamlet-like pose, gravely chews on a teething ring, and wonders, no doubt, when those hidden little white teeth are actually going to appear.

Cecile, the most patient and good-natured of the "quins," also chews meditatively on her teething ring in her spare moments.

And here's energy for you! Marie waves her rattle furiously as she watches closely to figure out what's making all that noise. Notice the firm grip she has on the tray of the high-chair with her little right hand.

Emelie is very, very fond of her rubber kitty, and whether she's kissing it or biting it here doesn't matter—it's all in affection.

To Provide Funds for Land Purchase

This Will Take Care of Tenant Problem, Secy. Wallace Believes

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Secretary Wallace said Wednesday that he expected "a great increase in interest in the South" in land ownership as a result of the bills of Senator Bankhead, Democrat, Alabama, and George Democrat, Georgia, to lend funds to tenants to purchase farms.

With the situation existing in which no place can be found either in industry or agriculture for many tenants, he said at his press conference, "it would seem that eventually the satisfactory outcome would be to have them on a little patch of land."

Chester C. Davis, farm administrator, said that a study is being made of farmers on relief rolls to determine how many have been forced there as a result of AAA crop reduction programs.

He described the situation in eastern Arkansas, where considerable activity has resulted from organization of tenant unions, as being "peculiar" in that a large number of the typical "floating" population of the South had "squatted" on the rich river bed lands.

The AAA is investigating this and other situations in which landlord-tenant relationships are involved, he said, but no announcement of pending action can be made. He said that the report of Mary Connor Myers, special attorney who investigated the Arkansas situation, could not be made public because of its contents.

Senator Advances Insurance Reform But Fraternal Companies May Be Exempt From Premium Tax

LITTLE ROCK—The senate insurance committee Wednesday night adopted an amendment to S. B. 255 (Shaver and Ashley) to exempt fraternal insurance companies from premium taxation under the recodification of insurance laws proposed in the bill.

A number of other amendments were proposed by Insurance Commissioner U. A. Genry but the committee deferred action until Monday, when another open hearing will be held.

Tom Poe, Little Rock lawyer, made several suggestions for changes affecting legal claims against insurance companies.

Maj. M. J. Harrison, former state insurance commissioner, said the fraternal companies were not satisfied with the amendment exempting them from taxation and offered a number of other amendments, which the committee filed for action Monday night.

Howard Conley, Little Rock insurance man, representing the National Association of Life Insurance Presidents, and member of the special committee that drafted the bill, told the committee it was patterned after the model insurance code adopted by the American Bar Association. He said that it was designed for protection of about 200,000 policyholders in Arkansas, who pay about $14,000,000 in premiums on insurance in force totaling about $500,000,000.

Boulder Dam Lake Rises Slowly

Slowly lapping against the tremendous bulk of Boulder Dam, water is rising to form the mammoth lake for the great federal power and reclamation program in the southwest. On either side of the canyon are shown intake towers as high as a 35-story building, through which the water eventually will move to the turbines. Stupendous size of the project is indicated by the relative thinness of the building, lower left, at the lake edge.

14 per cent higher during January, 1935, than in January 1934.

"Textile production remained practically unchanged.

"Building and engineering construction awards increased in January though they remained well below the level of January, 1934. Total contracts were 7.6 per cent above the December figure.

Census Necessary in Chicago Family

Wife Says There Are Three Children, But Husband Says "Five"

CHICAGO—How many children have been born to Stanley and Vearlo Rurek? The couple would like to know, and awaits the report of Master in Chancery Henry J. Berman next Wednesday.

Mrs. Rurek divorced Stanley in 1930 after 22 years of married life. She appeared before Superior Judge Rudolph F. Desort to ask an increase in the $2 a week support payments of her former husband, a stockyard foreman.

"How many children are there?" Judge Desort asked.

"Three," replied Mrs. Rurek.

"Five," her former spouse corrected her.

"Three," the woman maintained, "I ought to know."

"Five," Rurek insisted stubbornly. Judge Desort continued the case a week while Master in Chancery Berman takes an official census.

The New Deal

Farley wasn't dishonest. He was unwise.

No stamp collector himself, but only a jolly simple-minded postmaster general who just adored to issue a beautiful new kind of a stamp every week and autograph sheets of them for friends, he never realized that—for instance—somebody would soon be trying to peddle a sheet of his Mother's Day stamps for $20,000 because the lack of perforation and the fact that no one but he could buy them imperforate had vastly enhanced their market value.

And his best friends wouldn't tell him! Apparently it never occurred to Mr. and Mrs. Roosevelt, Secretary Morgenthau, Secretary Ickes, General Johnson, White House Secretary Louis Howe, and other stamp-collecting officials, friends, and relatives who received the gifts that poor Jim was getting his nose wet.

Congressman Stings 'Em

Nor did it occur to them to sell the stamps at a profit, either—except perhaps to a Farley friend in Norfolk, Va., who seems to be under suspicion as the agent who put his imperforates on the market and caused a major upheaval in stampdom.

But they were stung by the attack of Congressman Millard of New York, who exposed the whole affair from the floor of the house, pointing out that their estates had been considerably enhanced in value by the gifts and that there was nothing to prevent their heirs or executors from cashing in after their deaths.

Not So Smart, Either

Funny thing is, Millard was a bit dumb, too. Republican that he is, he kept miffing the ball, week after week, as the Westchester County branch of the American Philatelic Society (3000 members) showered him with protests against the Farley "racket."

Millard isn't a stamp collector either, so he had difficulty getting the point. But he got it fast enough when the organization threatened to get somebody else to raise the rumpus here and meanwhile pass a resolution denouncing him for inaction.

Roosevelt wasn't so dumb, though. He went into a huddle with Farley and the idea of getting out of the situation by flooding the market with imperforates may be attributed to him.

Who Laughs Last?

It's hard to say just who gets the last laugh. Of course anyone who held the Farley gifts with sordid thoughts of their cash value rather than tender sentiments toward Jim will now be foiled by the big inflation.

Farley's friends have always insisted that he was pretty cute to issue so many new stamps. That automatically forced collectors to buy uncanceled copies of each issue and drove receipts of the department's Philatelic Agency (just so much profit) up from $202,000 to $811,000 in a year.

The collectors certainly got even. They gave Jim a bad case of jim-jams about those gift imperforates.

On the other hand, Jim will now squeeze still more money out of them. A philatelist has to buy the inflated imperforates. Otherwise, he won't have a complete stamp collection!

Trade Irregular During February

Some Lines Expand, While Others Show But Little Change

NEW YORK—(AP)—Business recovery continued in January, but the movement was somewhat irregular during the first half of February, said the National Industrial Conference Board in its monthly business survey issued Wednesday. The survey reported some interruption in the upward trend and recessions in certain lines.

The board commented as follows: "Continued expansion of motor production was the most significant single development during January. Primarily as a result of automotive requirements, steel and iron production also showed marked January gains."

"Distribution and trade showed slight improvement over January of last year. Retail trade, as shown by volume of department store sales, was getting his nose wet.
